

COMMENTS FROM OUR READERS

VOLUME 104

ROFL you are so funny! I love your newsletters! You should have your own TV show about the crazy art world! Thanks Howard:)

Jane W., KY

---

BTW, I did want to mention that I, too, enjoy your ramblings and speculations in the newsletters regarding the stock market, so keep them coming. Your disinterested reader who complained about them can skip those parts. I have a fairly small but longstanding portfolio of my own that I've enjoyed managing and I always find shop talk about the market interesting.

Pat G., New York

---

Howard, your stock market comments are refreshing and for me, continue them. FYI, back in Feb/Mar I also took a large bite into Citi and Bank of America. Two brilliant minds or "throwing good money after.....". But I would never suggest that a friend/family follow my moves.

Norman H.

---

Howard –

Am impressed by your newsletter. You should blog!

Maybe you should be a guest blogger on one of our sites?

Jennifer R., New York

---

Howard -

I had thought the stock market report to rather refreshing bit and a sort of fillip to your column.

Allen Van S., California

---

For goodness sake Howard don't take any notice of that person just write what you like. People can read what interests them and make their own decision. I'm sure there are lots of folk who are involved in the share market and are keen to hear your news.

I was interested in the Olivier work and shall now have to see if I can find some of his paintings to look at. Some people have made huge profits by buying well. I think everything is on the up and up again.

Thanks for wonderful newsletter. Good luck.

Patricia., Australia

-----

I always look forward to your stock market comments. I am a retired financial consultant with over 40 years of experience. It is refreshing to hear other's experiences and approaches to investing. Keep it up. Thanks,

Garry D.